eLesson #1 (of 3)

NEW! MB's Article -- Jumping Around

Jump bids should have very specific meanings. When you leap without knowing for sure that your partner will interpret your bid in the same manner, you're jumping blindly. In this article by Bridge with Larry Cohen teacher, Michael Berkowitz, Michael will talk you through the meanings of various jumps by opener and responder.

LC Classic -- Negative Doubles

Larry hates teaching conventions. When someone comes up at a class and asks what Larry thinks of a new-fangled convention, he usually responds, "I can't remember what I play as it is." Still, some conventions are so valuable that they should be part of your repertoire. If you forced Larry to name a convention to play, one of his first answers would be "Negative Doubles." Although most players now use negative doubles, many misuse them. Refresh your understanding of this fundamental convention with Larry.
