eLesson #1 (of 3)

Updated Larry's Quizzes Defense--Overall Strategy

Becoming a good defender will improve your score more quickly than any other improvement you could make. When defending you need to decide whether to take a passive approach or an aggressive one. Generally, it's better to be passive unless there's a threatening suit somewhere. See if you are approaching your defense in the right way.

Article- Jack Detection

Bridge is a game that rewards playing the odds. With 8 cards missing the queen, you normally take a finesse, because that's 50% and the drop is less than that. Sometimes, you'll use what you know to go against the odds. For instance if you only have 7 cards in a suit, and you know one opponent has 4 of them, odds favor playing that hand to hold a particular missing card. If that hand holding the card means you can't make your contract, then you need to hope the odds are wrong. Learn about how to use information in this article from the archives.
